Targeted audiences of the Campaign are men, youth people, boys, and media as the channels of transferring campaign’ messages. The Campaign will focus on increasing awareness on the issue of violence against women and girls throughout the country; involving men and boys through sport; involving youth people through secondary schools; and using new technologies and new media as tools for education on prevention of violence. Campaign' message will focus on using "Turn Off" sign, as the symbol of possibilities for turning off the violence from our society when everyone is equally involved. The sign will serve as recognizable creative symbol, painted in orange, to create link with the "Orange Day", while the message "Let Us Turn Off the Violence (Against Women and Girls)", will be clear invitation for action involving everyone. The Campaign will consist of series of events, including interactive events with media presence on 24 November and 10 December, as well as several promotional events in secondary schools, at soccer fields, in coffee shops, and fitness centers. The Campaign will also include men public personalities from various professional fields in Bosnia and Herzegovina that will be invited to turn off violence. During the whole period of the Campaign, counters will be placed in larger cities of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and citizens will be able to give their voice for prevention of violence against women and girls.
